

Language Difficulty Categories from the Foreign Service Institute

The U.S. Foreign Service Institute has categorized languages into 4 categories based on how long, on average, it takes their students to reach “professional working proficiency” in these languages. Keep these charts on hand to help you remember which languages are harder than others (at least for English-speaking U.S. diplomats!).

Mango Languages offers courses in many of the languages listed below, which are hyperlinked if you’re viewing this document on a computer!
