Below are the responses to our networking survey. Enjoy!

What valuable resource have you discovered to help navigate your online world?

- Zoom meetings
- Being able to use my colleagues as a source to navigate.
- Microsoft Teams has been invaluable to stay connected as a team while working from home.
- The list-serves have been invaluable trying to figure out how to spend the CARES act money.

What's your biggest concern for the fall semester?

- Being able to fully serve my foster youth population
- Enrollments
- Providing a good student experience for our campus students that must attend online since campus is not opening in the fall. I worry especially for the incoming freshman class.
- Students will wait until the last minute to try to get into school.

What's your biggest worry for former students?

- Not being able to complete their educational goals
- Finding jobs in the workforce during this pandemic.
- Are they working? What happens after the CARES Act accommodations end, so many will have the added burden of repaying student loans- will they be able to?

- They will just stop going to school because they do not do good learning online.

BONUS: What funny home office co-worker story do you have to share?

- My husband making jokes while I am on zoom meetings
- Seeing one of my colleagues without her usual make up on. She forgot she had started the web conference with her camera on.
- No answer.
- I was trying to do a zoom meeting and my neighbor started mowing his lawn. I do not think his mower has a muffler and I had to run and get ear buds and mute my microphone so that others on the meeting could continue to hear the conversation.
