ATLASSIAN CLOUD ENTERPRISE MIGRATION

The low-risk migration strategy for organisations with multiple Atlassian tools and instances.

With Cloud becoming the by-default option for most Atlassian users, those currently on the Server or Data Center editions face the challenges and risks of migrating their tools across platforms.

Clearvision's Atlassian Cloud Enterprise Migration is an iterative and structured managed service that minimises risks. It is aimed at medium to large organisations with a complex landscape of Atlassian tools and instances that want to minimise the risks associated with this type of project.

WHAT'S DIFFERENT?

► Iterative vs big-bang: Clearvision's solution allows you to migrate only the data you need over a period of time instead of all of the legacy data you have at once. It has proven to be a more efficient and lower risk strategy than the traditional big-bang approach. This iterative approach is recommended by Atlassian for large scale projects.

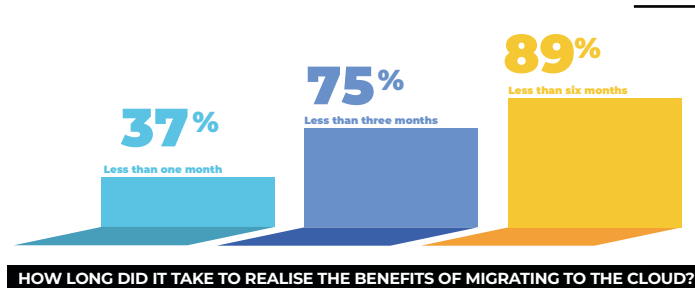

► Replicate success:

We identify the first team or business unit to migrate and carry out the pilot project. Then we evaluate the results and initiate the roll-out to the rest of the business. The duration can take 6, 12 or 18 months, depending on the size and complexity. During the transitional period, old and new applications will run in parallel to ensure you can continue working as normal.

► Data and risk assessment:

Understanding your current Atlassian landscape and the data you have. Determining the minimum data required, and most importantly, identifying business risks and impact.

► Solution Architect:

A tailored pilot solution for one team, replicated across the business over time, usually 6/12/18 months, depending on the initial assessment.

► Project Manager:

A Clearvision Project Manager will be available throughout the length of the project to ensure a timely roll-out of the solution and to provide progress reports.

► Dedicated resource:

A dedicated Atlassian certified professional to deliver your enterprise migration from end-to-end. Guaranteed, vetted, and tested by Clearvision's resourcing division, ClearHub.
