

Christophe Deckers

Christophe Deckers completed his Bachelor in Biochemistry at University of Quebec in Montreal. He was then introduced to fundamental research during his Chemistry Masters degree in the leading Laboratory of Molecular Medicine directed by professor emeritus Richard Beliveau. He has previously worked at St-Justine's Hospital, doing cancer research using multiple chromatographic and sample preparation techniques.

Christophe joined Agilent Technologies in 2005 and is Application Scientist for sample preparation in the USA and Canada. Christophe has 15 years of experience in sample preparation and is very passionate about it.

