

Personalized Support at Care Facilities

Care facilities, such as assisted living facilities (ALFs) and nursing homes, provide a great service to elders who need daily support. However, they aren't designed for one-on-one care even when fully staffed and...

- Several studies have shown 90% of nursing homes are understaffed. New federal data shows staffing has been misreported. Even many top-ranked facilities lacked proper staff on certain shifts.
- 46% of nurses said that they have missed changes in a patient's condition because of their excessive workload.
- ALFs in Florida have a minimum requirement for having only one staff awake (for facilities over 17 residents; smaller facilities don't even have this requirement).

A little extra support from an EasyLiving caregiver can improve the experience for the resident, family and care staff in several ways:

- Extra care during key times, like help with the AM/PM routine or assistance on weekends
- Checking in and oversight: spotting changes, alerting family/providers
- Special outings and transportation designed around the individual's needs; personal accompaniment to appointments and events
- Help for clients who may need higher levels of care, possibly allowing them to stay at the facility longer or get through an illness/recuperation in their familiar environment
- Support while adjusting to the facility, help on moving day, settling in and getting acquainted with the routine and layout
