

Even during this time period, we are still making progress on goals. On Wednesday, I had the opportunity to share with teachers our work in Middle School relative to the standards for our school improvement plan. I explained in each standard what our school ratings meant and how I devised mini goals, quick wins, or milestones in our Continuous Improvement journey as a school. It is important teachers and staff know WHY we are doing the things we are doing, why we are doing it 'this way' and the role they play in helping us improve.

News and Reminders:

Lost and Found:

Many more scholars means many more items left behind. Please encourage your child to come claim their belongings. Many leave their sweatshirts and hoodies behind, as well as valuable electronics. Please remind your child to stop by outside my office to look at what could be theirs.

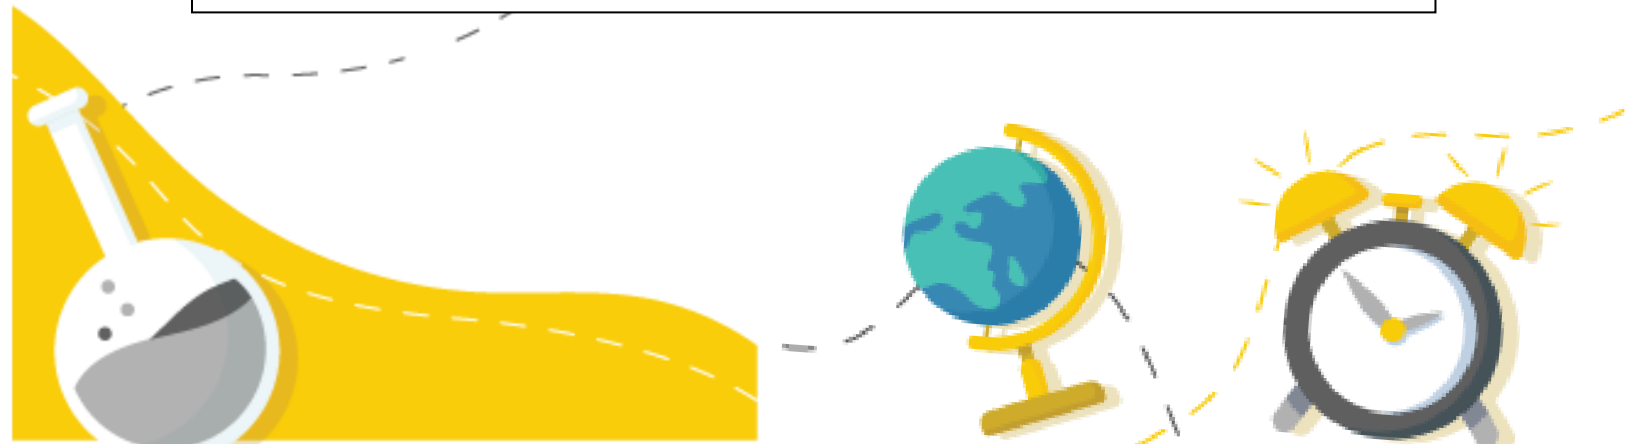

LIVE from an Ignite MS Classroom:

I had the unique opportunity to help out in the Math classroom this week while LIVE lessons were happening. Time flew by in Grade 7 as the scholars were on a scavenger hunt to practice their skills. They didn't even know they were learning!

On time pick up from school:

Be reminded that per KHDA protocols, parents and guardians have 10 minutes to collect their children from school. We finish at 2:50 Mondays-Thursdays and 11:30 on Fridays. Failure to pick up children on time can result in being fined, and it forces staff to stay back for scholar supervision. Your help is appreciated. Everyone is to leave.

Uniforms:

Please be reminded that clothing that has a personalized logo, design or saying on it are not allowed. If we have dress up days for Spirit Week or maybe an earned celebration or privilege, that will be communicated. Scholars will receive a warning and then they will have consequences. New zip ups are available for purchase. Zak's had the Uniform bus here at Ignite School and you can always stop in to order from them. We want our eldest and most mature looking sharp for the rest of the Ignite scholars and community!

Readiness to learn:

Instructional time is lost for each time the scholar requests to go to their locker because they came with little to nothing in a class. Habits built now carry forward. Being organized and ready to learn will pay dividends as your child matures and become more independent. Thank you for helping support this at home.

Middle School Celebration:

This on hold until further notice, as I'd like parents there to help celebrate many things from anti-bullying, to getting to class on time and various competition winners. We have many certificates to award for scholar achievements and recognition, as well as winners to be announced with prizes from our anti-bullying campaign in December as well as our

Take care and enjoy your week,
