

The Belly of the Valley

Summary

'The Belly' is an architectural translation of the confluence of the two rivers at the arena green park. A continuous linear element which folds itself to form a 3-dimensional loop occupying the entire site hovers above and delivers a message of the 'Urban Confluence' to the public. Plus, newly designed passages will connect existing monuments harmoniously together with more naturalized park space.

Suspended in the air, this 446 feet long gallery will have the state of art image projections that interacts with visitors to learn the story of the Silicon Valley as the center of technology and its future role.