

PROJECT SUMMARY

HIGH PARK

High Park is an elevated garden overlooking the Santa Clara Valley. A single triangular platform set two-hundred feet above the Guadalupe River confluence provides a park in the sky for the community and visitors alike. This raised fragment of the natural ecology of the valley below, celebrates nature and extends the role of the urban icon beyond the formal gesture in the skyline to create a habitable environment in the city that remains alive and reflective of its context below.