

The Earth Above Our Heads

“Earth above our heads” is a large chunk of earth raised high in the sky by a simple structure. It contains a naturally filtered reservoir of water. By integrating infrastructure and nature, the proposal creates a resilient environment that connects to the larger network of infrastructure in the region and improves connectivity among communities. The landmark stays in the collective memory not only as an image but as a shared experience of spaces of contemplation and production. At night, it turns it into a giant glowing cloud that can take any form with the play of light.
