

The Tech Scepter is a 195' tower that will be erected in the west park. Visitors to the park will be able to interact with the tower by visiting the observatory at the top, or directly contributing to its energy needs by turning hand cranks and exercising on stationary bikes at the base. The minimal footprint of the tower will preserve the park space below, and continue to allow for gatherings and events. The Tech Scepter is a symbol of Silicon Valley that evokes the light tower of the past while symbolizing technology's march to the future.