

Organograph is a monumental architectural sculpture proposed for the Urban Confluence competition in San Jose, CA. A towering kinetic building in the shape of a blossoming heliotropic flower, it is at once a call to action on climate change, a giant clock, and a community congregation hub for civic activity and cross pollination. The three interlinked animated figures inside elucidate the dynamics of the Earth's carbon cycle, viscerally illustrating the challenges of our dependence on fossil fuels. Organograph is a call for change and an iconic beacon of hope, for the people of Silicon Valley, and of the world.
