

LUMINARY

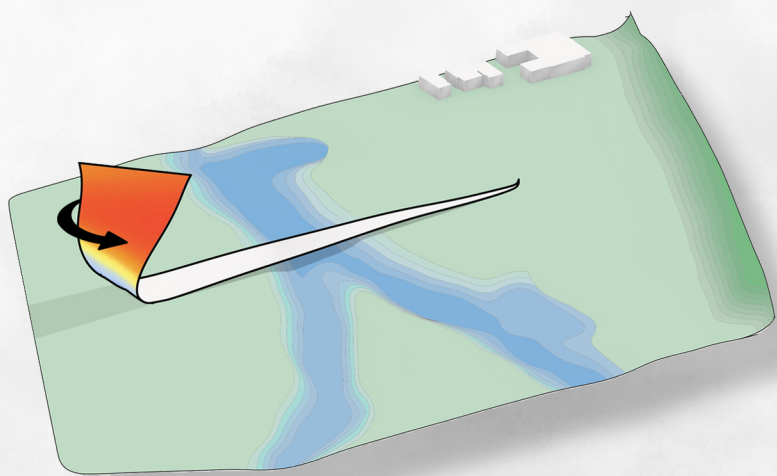

Luminary stands proud in its urban context and role - telling the story of both San Jose and Silicon Valley as well as exhibiting transformative design on a global scale. A simple triangular plane has risen from the grounds of San Jose to form a bridge over Guadalupe River starting from a narrow perspective and evolving skyward to represent ambition and opportunity. The landmark acts as a cape and turns the people wearing it into heroes to cultivate a growth mindset. It only takes one good idea and some courage to make the world a better place for everyone.

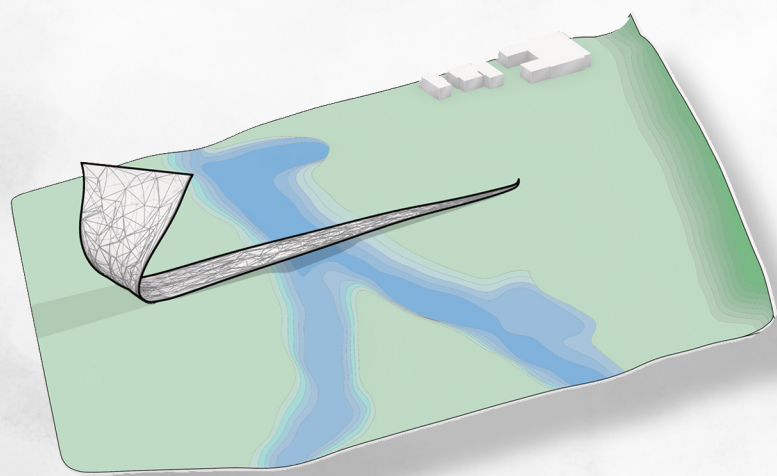

Connecting both sides of the park and outlining a triangular view axis.

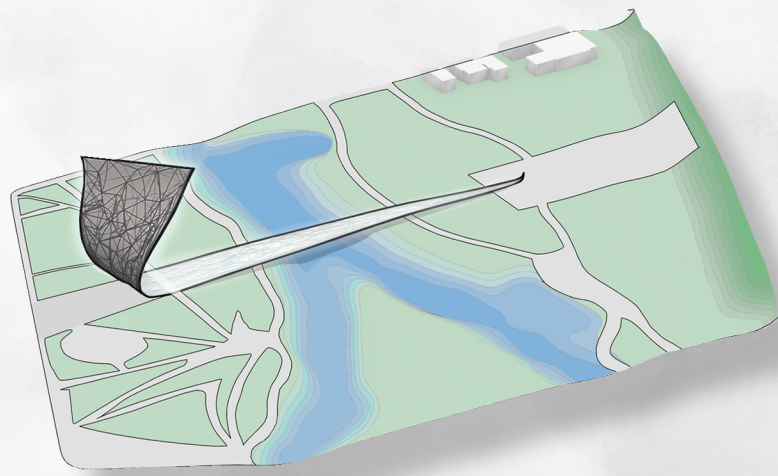

Lifting up the end to create a vertical structure and the bridge part to respect the Riparian Corridor setbacks.

Rotating the top for optimal solar exposure and determining the most valuable area for solar panels.

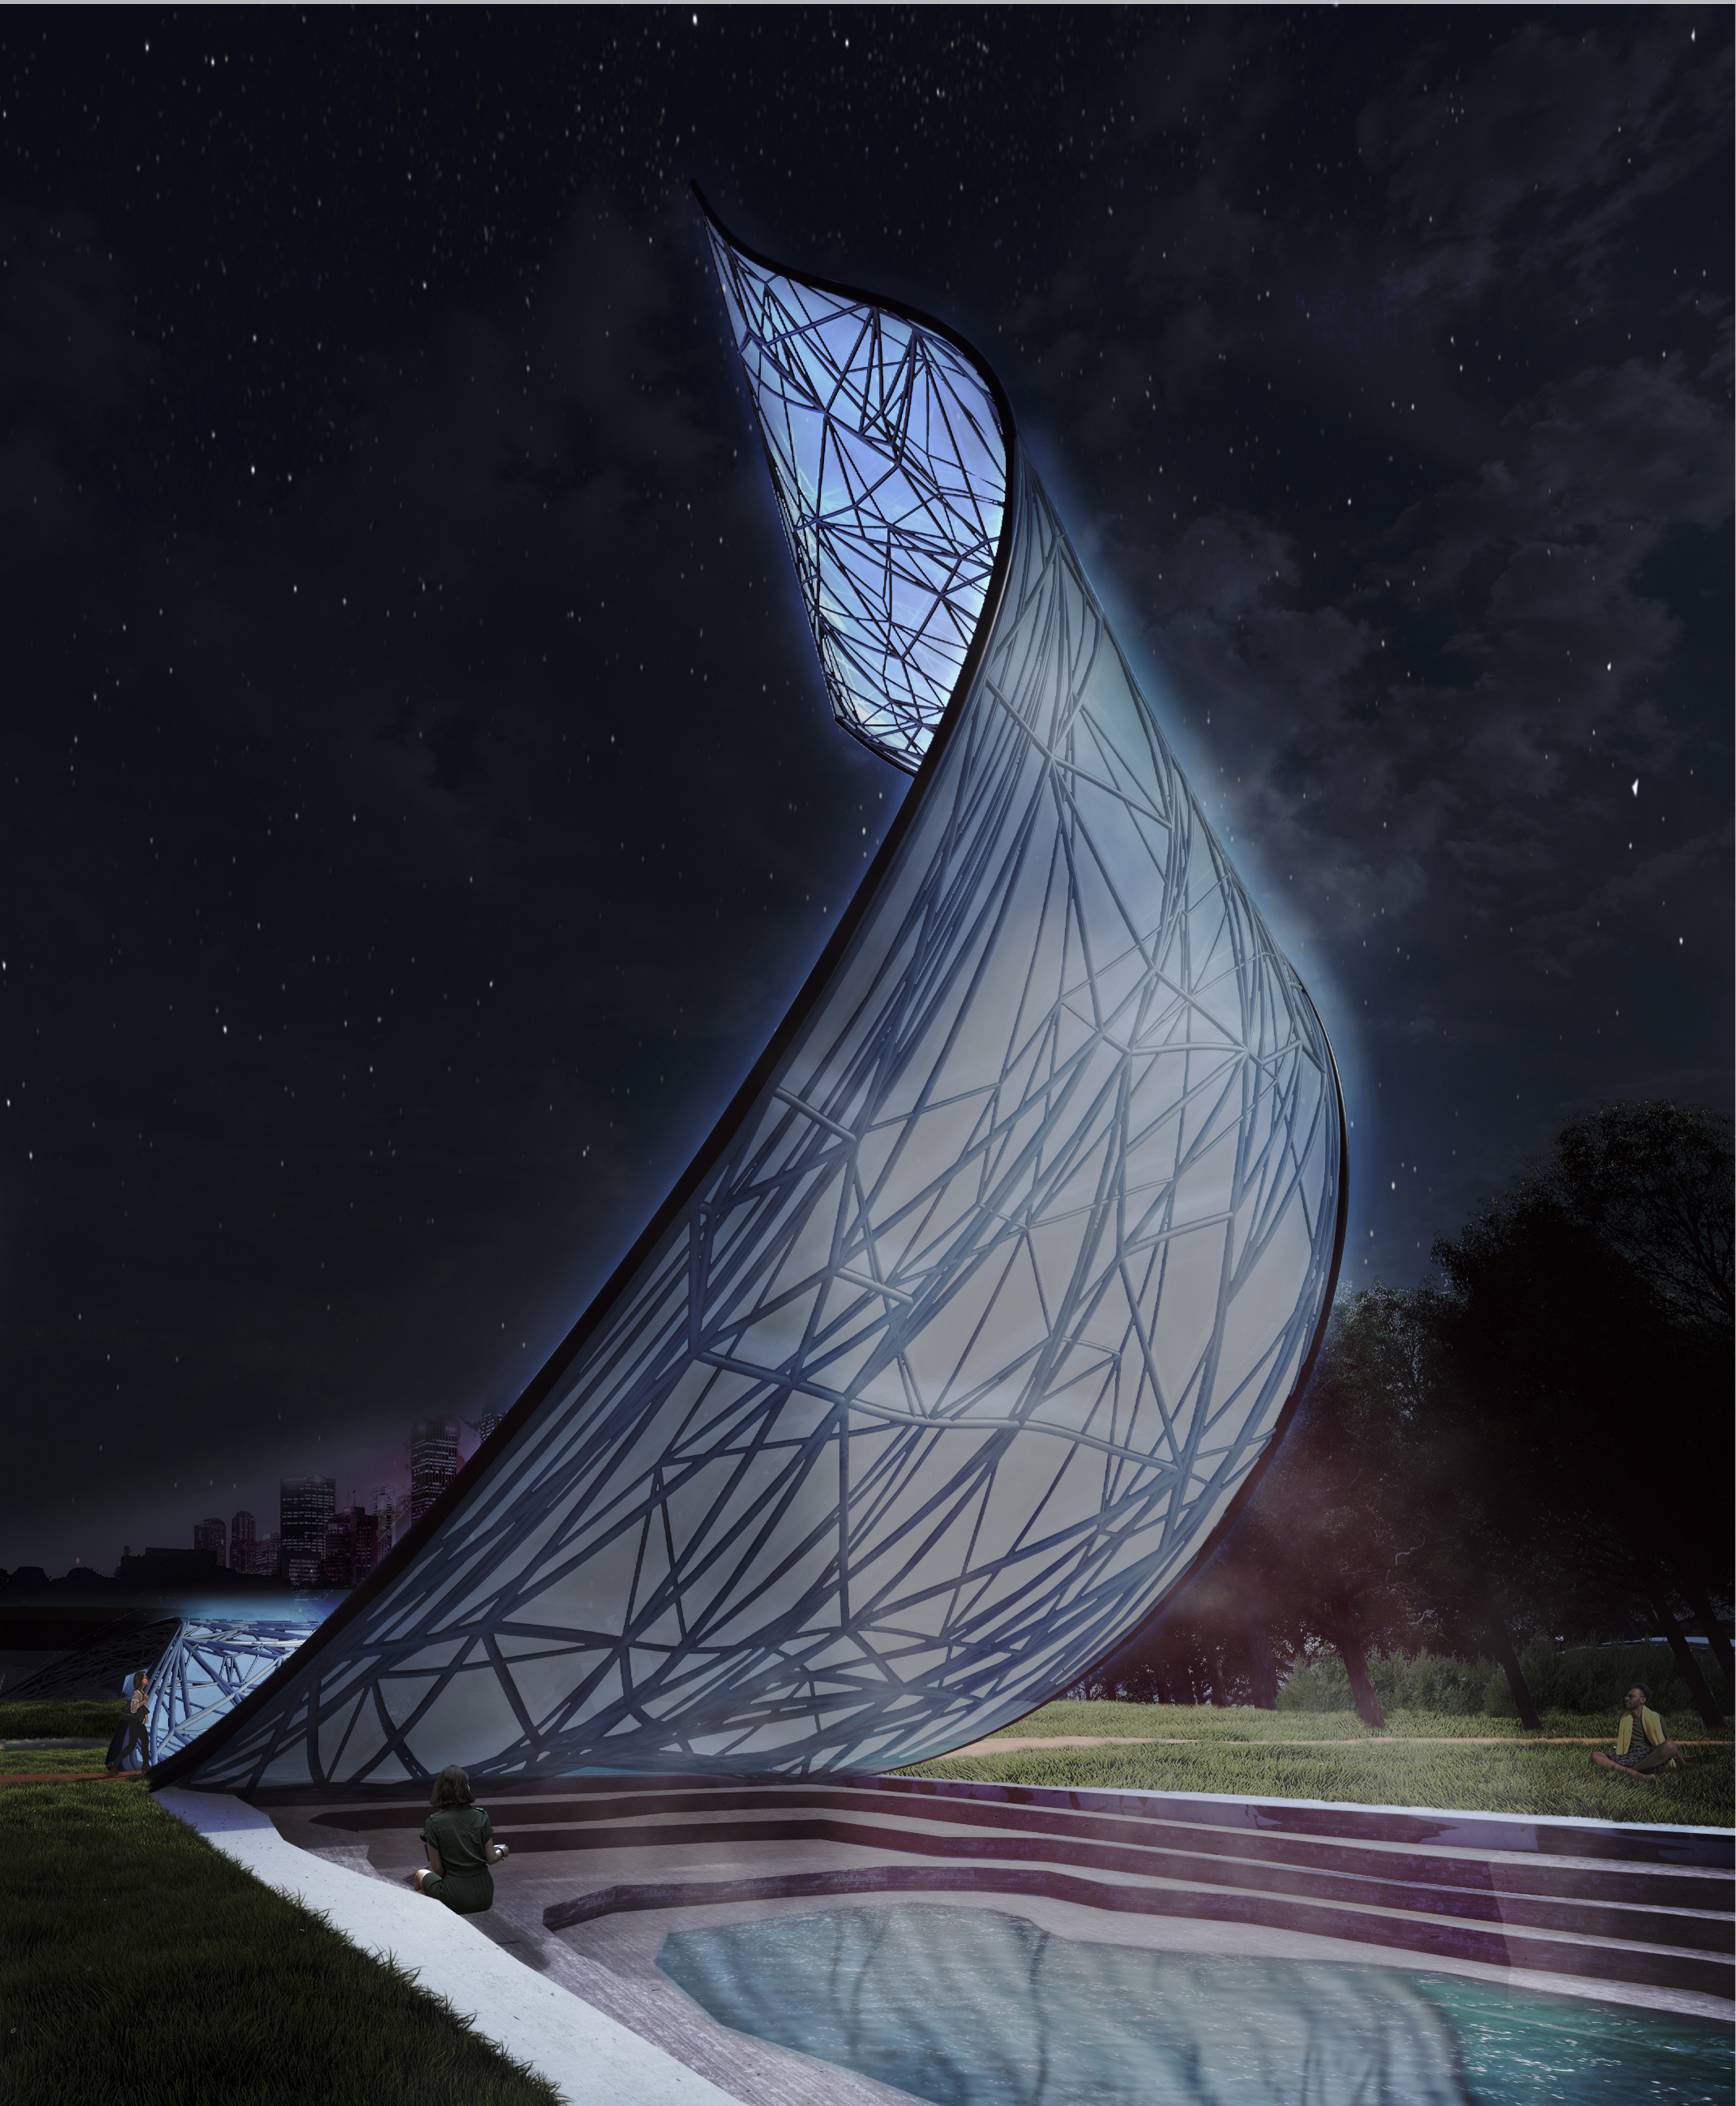

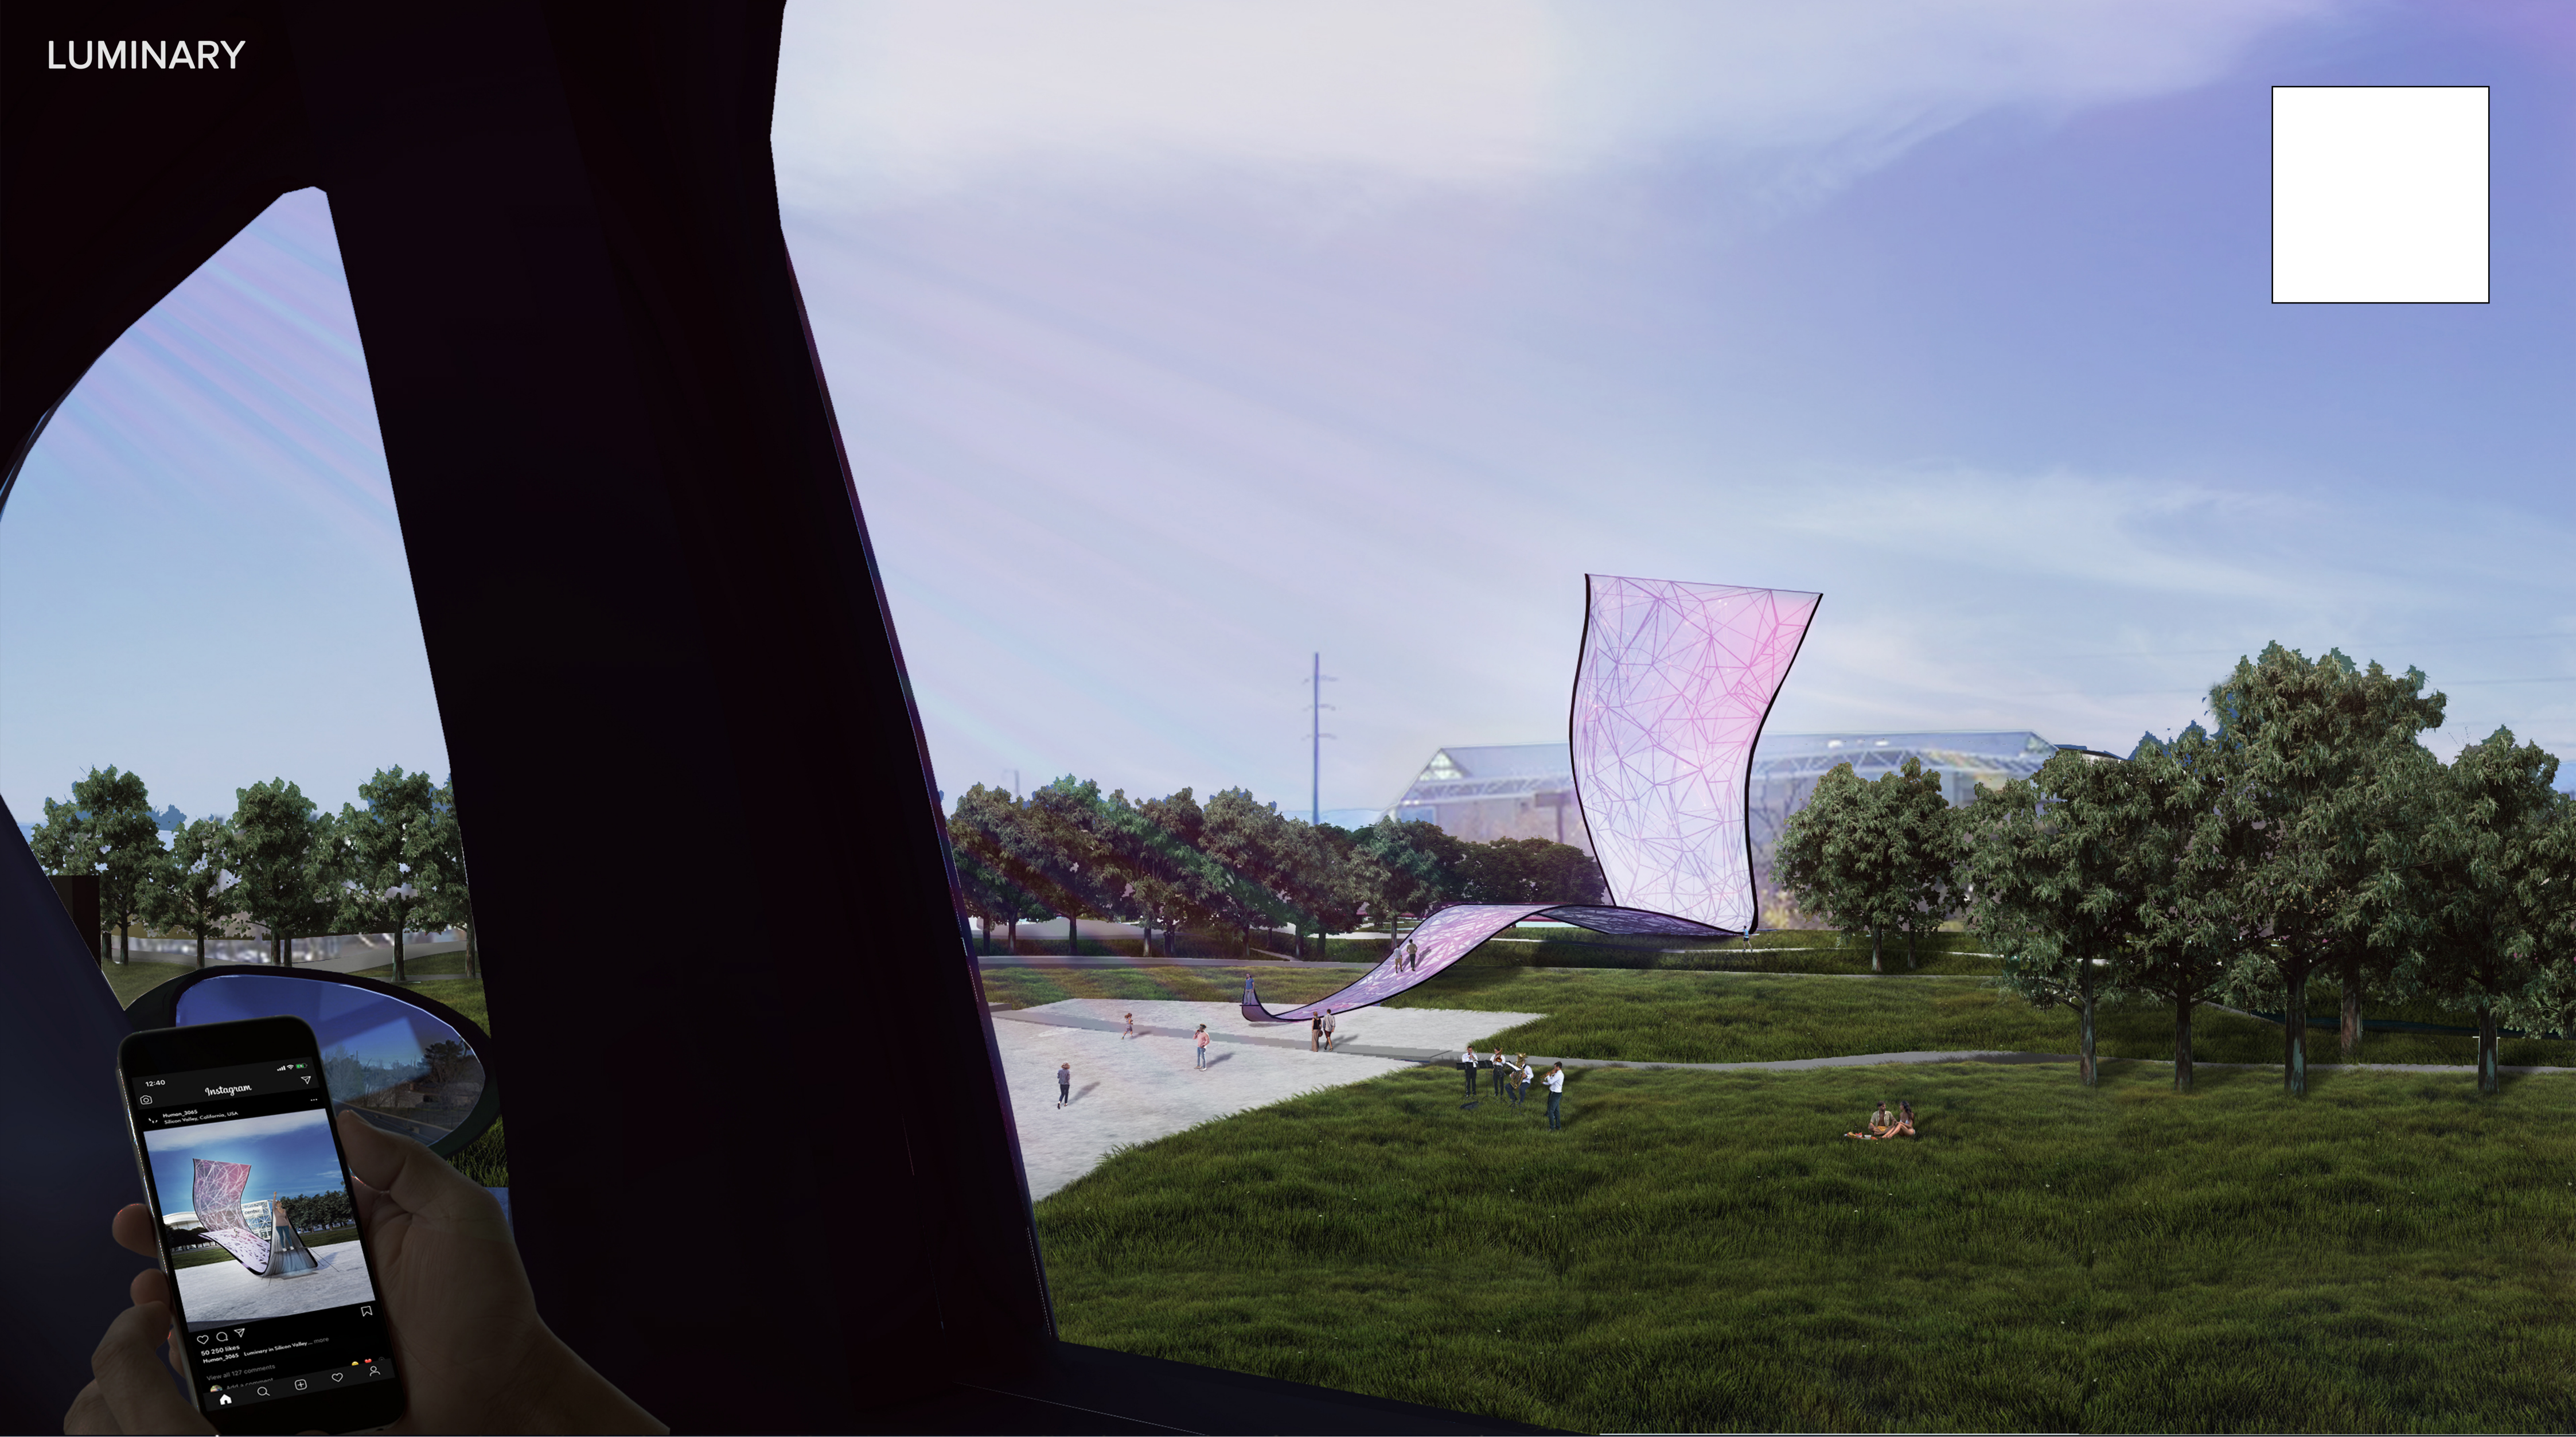

Populating the surface with a complex grid system for structural integrity.

The top face of the structure hosts desired lighting solutions while the bottom face does not emit light.
