

A big abstract tree flower standing on the green, it is like a tree, an enormous blooming flower or a building. People can see this surreal tree from far distance, when people come close to it, the interating of the surranging area and the visitors become a different landscape, the comparison between the real nature and artificial nature just like the infinite possibilities in the city, a state of growth. It is a work to tell people care about the nature and live with nature.