

The City's Garden will be a new “outdoor interior” space that supports unity, environment, and a sense of community, affirming its connection as the heart of San José.

Presenting as a tower and arcade, the tower’s thin frame rises tall along the highway and announces its presence; within, visitors explore a dense vertical garden that sustains a restaurant and wellness programming. The arcade’s sweeping curve reaches to each side of the park. Collectively, the arcade and tower create a single, sustainable object that marks a new civic landmark that is rooted in San José.
