

FLYING VALLEY : PROJECT SUMMARY

Our proposal aims to communicate the need for one crucial philosophical innovation: conceiving the environment as a complex of interaction. We do believe that before changing our behaviour towards nature and within human beings we must innovate our way of conceiving nature.

Our intervention is a multiplication of the landscape, trying not only to preserve existing nature, but to enhance its conditions, to give space, to build surface for all living species in the area, and in the world, including plants, animals and humans.

It is innovation in the way of thinking and conceiving the world. It is innovation in the way of living the city. It is the experience of walking on a floating landscape with spectacular views on the valley and on the city.
