

The Project Summary

The project brings the great nature's powers such as water and air combined with the cutting edge of technology to the heart of the Silicon Valley while pushing the technology to its new limits and challenging both public and professionals for its acceptance and boundaries.

The design derives its core fundamentals from the original Light Tower, such as the low footprint, while providing a significant visual impact to the area, making it impossible to be in the city of San Jose and not to see and visit the new Cloud Tower.
