

The Mill showcases the progressive culture of the residents of Silicon Valley. It reflects the attitude of one of the most innovative communities in the world. The Mill, this new icon of Silicon Valley encourages people from other places to understand and share the same values of the residents of Silicon Valley.

The Mill runs on clean energy and natural resources. Its lavish vertical garden can provide visitors with fresh and organic produce. Members of the community and visitors from other places can interact while gardening together. The whole system represents a unique learning tool for younger generations, which our future and the future of this planet depends on them.
