

The Shell

The Shell is a unique public space that has all the ingredients to become an exciting landmark for San José.

The space consists of two components: a convertible roof structure that sits on top of a slope where the park smoothly drops down, creating a cultural gravity field and a place of expectations.

The flexibility of the roof caters to a variety of configurations which gives the space under it a diversity of moods and context.

It will be a great place to have a picnic with friends, but also a great location for having a sublime art experience.
