

The NET

The NET

Gigantic yet barely visible Net, stretched over Arena Green Park 140 feet above the ground becomes the new symbol of the Silicon Valley. The Net metaphorically visualizes the Internet becoming physical representation of virtual space providing means for interaction and communication. Structure is stretched between 3 pylons setting a very sensitive and delicate landscape response.

As the majority of the surrounding areas will be soon redeveloped which will have a significant impact on a city skyline and generate a strong demand for additional public space. The Net project will help to solve this challenge and contribute additional 3,4 acres to the public space which can be used for recreation and events as well as a new city viewpoint. At night the Net becomes a huge horizontal high-res screen, which can serve as interactive game or light installations setup.

FACADE

