

The NET

Gigantic yet barely visible Net, stretched over Arena Green Park 140 feet above the ground becomes the new symbol of the Silicon Valley. The Net metaphorically visualizes the Internet becoming physical representation of virtual space providing means for interaction and communication. Structure is stretched between 3 pylons setting a very sensitive and delicate landscape response. The Net creates 3,4 acres of additional public space, which can be used for recreation and events as well as a city viewpoint. At night the Net becomes a huge horizontal high-res screen, which can serve as interactive game or light installations setup.
