

The concept of Metallurgic is to combine the natural beauty of a raw silicon mineral and combine it with the ingenuity of modern humankind's technology into a hybrid transition between past and present. The design allows for an open air sheltered rooftop with a solar powered canopy. It offers a central civic space inside of the mineral itself, as well as an open air pavilion on the ground floor to allow for the public to congregate, lunch, and get out of the sun on a hot day. Focusing on function as well as form, this design embodies the journey we have taken as a species in harnessing the power of mother earth.