

Drishti” (Sanskrit): ‘the focused gaze’, vision, inward sight.
Inspired by a philosophical phrase, “Drishti, Srishti”, meaning: “As is your vision, so is your universe”.
Drishti is a sculptural expression and reflective symbol, of focusing and elevating energies into positive directions, as creators of our individual and collective reality. Drishti’s curving mirrored steel angles sweep our gaze upward along elegant arcs, pointing to the stars. Repeating patterns of rounded steel mirrors shimmer like an array of little suns, inviting us to reflect, repose. Stepping back, our image merges with everyone else’ into a mosaic portrait of shared reflection, literally and symbolically.
