

AXIS MUNDI

Silicon valley became the center of our world

Silicon Valley became the center of our world, a world of innovation and permanent change.

Oriented north to south, east to west, this sculpture is a tribute to the brilliant minds who have worked and lived in this amazing valley. I proposed a giant spherical led screen in the interior of the sphere. Like a ceiling of stars. is a place where people can come together and enjoy different and amazing content, from the history of evolution of the valley to the newest discoveries.

This tiny world is a tribute too, to mother nature, represented in the forest of trees planted on the top, a magic garden. Cherry trees, plums trees and peaches trees, a reminder of trees that were grow on these lands. When the trees bloom they will offer a wonderful landscape.

Axis Mundi is a symbol, a message to next generations. Is necessary to keep the balance between technology as human creation and nature, our mother. "The essential is invisible to the eye" you can't see the data and neither can the oxigen, but they are there and they move our existence.

We chose this location because of the possibility of being seen from the highway