

The new park provides a platform to project ideas of common ground symbolic for open public space. The elevated surface becomes a backdrop for debate and demonstrations.

The illumination of the structure at night defines the internal lattice array of wood columns and beams. The tower can alternate from dynamic LED light arrays to backlighting for moving picture displays.

Conceived as an urban form to project art and moving images and highlights San Jose as a space for social awareness and public function.

