

Urban Confluence Silicon Valley

Circuits and Platforms: Scaffold for the City

Project Summary

Scaffold, a floating shape – somewhere between ground and sky, between existing site elements and the future forms of a neighborhood in growth and transition. Both a place for gathering and resting as well as a moment on a larger river park route. A circuit of movement and migration across the city. A platform for events and activities planned and yet to be conceived by future citizens. The scaffold becomes a variable structure for present uses yet “open” for future change – a framework for organic growth over time and by an evolving community – an active and participatory icon!