

The Heart

Original Shape =

The shape is related to the organic shape of a human heart.

Two segments rise from the "rivers" as blood vessels in the body, where they take people from the bottom of the site to the heights of the scenery views and the indoors spaces that will demonstrate the city for visitors.

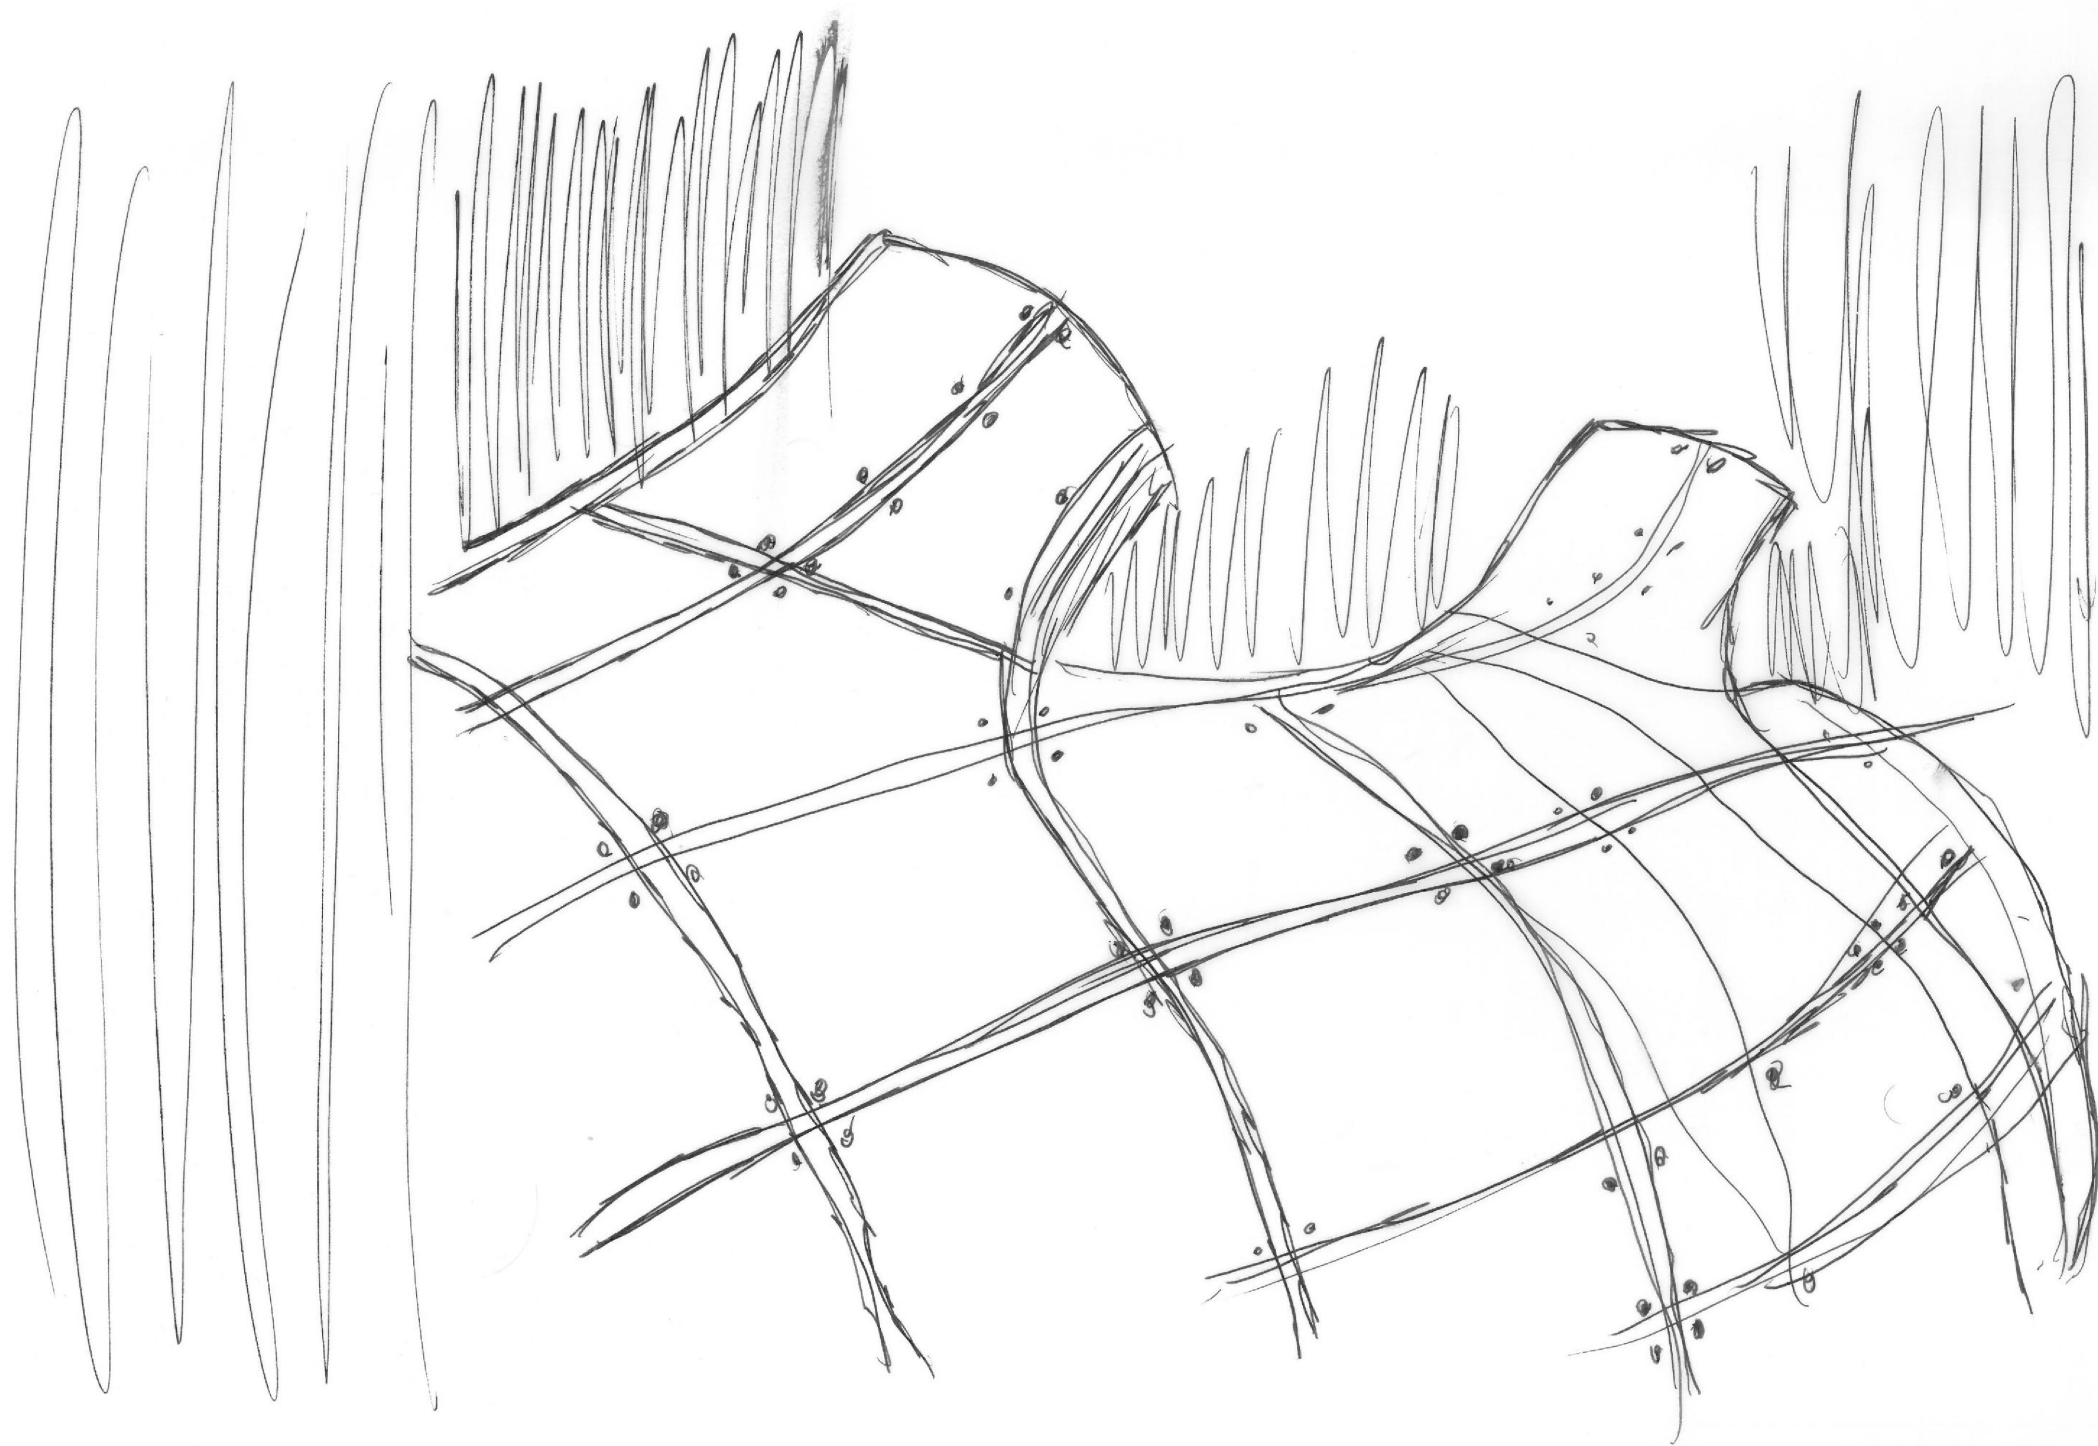

The building contains four levels, the ground level where people will be "outside the building" which means they are next to the building but outside connected to the city.

The second part is the corridors along the circular building that offers view to the scenes from the city.

Thirdly, the indoor spaces and museums which will be total indoor space developed with technology to offer for the visitors

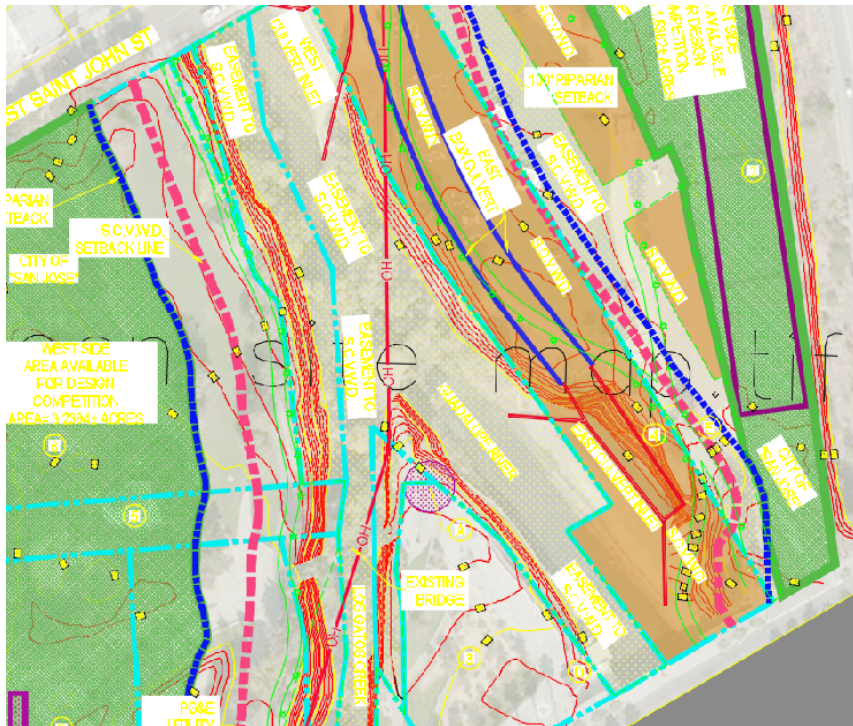

Finally the porch in the top of the building which will serve that beautiful view during the day and night from the sky view and open to the air.

The Skin of the building will be built off with smart palettes which will offer smart lighting at night, yet could be used as screen all together still.

It also offers an organic shape that we are looking for to create in this building.

The materials are environmental friendly.
