

100 Word Project Description

The San José Beacon

Part cultural icon, spectacle, and energy harvester, the San José Beacon sited on the southwest side of arena green in the Guadalupe River Park, performs as adaptive architecture in an activated landscape that will catalyze the extraordinary cultural history of San José and its extended environs. Our generative design approach integrates the dynamics of light and energy in a vibrant cultural context. Showcasing the potential of sustainable design to excite the general public in an urban context, the San José Beacon produces its own self illumination and gives back energy to the park and the collaborative community of San José.