

Named after Raymond Scott composition “Power House” (Orchestral version) this monument if built would hold several records. These include housing the tallest tesla coils in the world, having one of the highest water falls in the world, and with included mesh medium can project holograms. The towers should be the tallest tangible fountains in the world. The pillars at the bottom (which can move up and down) would probably be the largest dynamic structure in the world. This would make the monument the only monument in the world that can move, and change shape in the section designated.
