

Summary:

The proposed landmark represents three of the most important characteristics of Silicon Valley: imagination, innovation and technology, with a special touch that makes us always remember the original electric light tower.

With the shape of an asymmetrical semi-open bulb, it is simple enough for everyone around the world to identify and understand, and complicated enough to attract curiosity.

Near to the landmark, an open space for gatherings will be available. This space has been inspired by the technology breakthrough that Silicon Valley has made, thus this area will be designed in the form of electric circuits.
