

The Wired highlights the innovative technological supremacy of Silicon Valley by incorporating novel construction techniques in a social, urban context.

The Wired aspires to be an iconic intervention within San Jose, weaving together social, natural and technological wonders that encompass the identity of the city.

Shaded and sun-exposed areas change throughout the day and time of the year, creating a unique beauty from moment-to-moment.

Moreover, the high terrace offers a view that can be watched at sunrise, sunset and night hours.