

The Message-Maker

An icon where we power and create messages & icons

The world's first giant, human-powered, texting machine that projects its messages across a river and includes ideas submitted from either someone in the park or on the other side of the world.

Each message is created by the people for the people – and powered by the people.

People exercise on solo power-generating machines, or together on larger machines. Others walk, run or dance on paths where every step generates power in a 'carbonless footprint'.

This landmark is the people.
