

observer

In the new age, which has created a world-wide connection between the present and the future, human beings, as observers, are suspended at a point and witness the cause of this phenomenon. Where all the events that caused the data revolution have caused a pandemic outbreak in Silicon Valley, the cradle of technology and data.

At present, human beings are standing at a point where they are advancing their lives under the influence of technology, and their lives have become completely dependent on data, perhaps with dramatic progress. Humans who, prior to the data age, were dependent on material functions and entered into functions with the digital revolution of emotions, witnessed an explosion of information that caused human events in all fields of science.

The building is actually formed by the intersection of two worlds, and the observer in a globular globular structure, as given, has a vague and immaterial existence standing on a suspended plate where it is located as a global and extensive gallery, and from there according to Receiving information from Silicon Valley's main platform tracks the world through electronic and visual data as it is transmitted from satellites to feel a kind of human life in a trance alone, what is given in the background There may be a sense of backwardness in today's life, and this in itself creates a new generation of data between humans and their daily lives. The complete circle is a symbol of the completion of the universe before the data age and the high semicircle that has continued over time with the advancement of data, and its openness will evolve in the future by human progress. Due to the immateriality of human data, we have given it objectivity to enter a new millennium of the human race.
