

The proposal for the Urban Confluence foresees a great arch of 200' high that crowns the encounter between the two rivers and links the two sides of the park.

Above and upon it goes a system of paths that allows visitors to walk through the park at different heights. The end of the path is a panoramic terrace from which they can enjoy the view of the downtown and the surrounding area from the top.

In this way the Iconic Structure aims to become a gathering place for the citizens and for the future visitors of the park.
