stained and fused glass with bronze

Two monumental sculptures that tie together areas of the park made from stained glass and bronze. The arches allude to aspiration, ideas and ascendance while the dome is a functional mediation spot for individual or community reflection- each base of the dome provides a chair to sit in. The structures will be lit at night by solar power and scale is to be determined based on further site visits. I work with the site and am flexible and curious to community input though initially saw the arches at about 45 ft high and the dome around 25 ft high.
