

Project Summary

The goal is to re-shape the relationship between the river and city. The river and city should not be separate entities, but a union which both are the memory of the community.

Hence, we try to bring in diversified public amenities to print the river into our daily fabric.

People may dine with friends and the sound of the stream

People may run track with the faraway sunset and sparkly river below.

People may walk around the trail with families and the song of birds.
