

RAINBOW FRAME is a potent structure to its immediate context & to the place where it belongs. The inspiration & concept of the structure lies within the site where it resides which beautifully portrays the confluence of two rivers meeting.

San Jose history has always been in a remarkable conjuncture.

The informal paths created by walking by the people should be retained which creates an organic movement also the frequent workshops or commerce would be placed in accordance around the gathering spots.

The structure stretches up to 200 feet in height & splaying around reaching up to its threshold trying to engulf all of it can.
