

PROJECT STATEMENT:

Hopefully this project will attract visitors from all walks of life, rich and poor, sick and healthy, young and old; from all race, religious and ethnic backgrounds, with all levels of education, values, employment, work, careers and political affiliations.

The current economic success of Silicon Valley hopefully will continue to grow and flourish, remembering that in the not too distant past this valley's main contribution to the economy was producing fruit and vegetables. If future economic trends change may this sculpture-structure remain as a symbol of this productive era and of a great international city.

When completed this work could be self-sustaining, utilizing state-of-the-art principals. Its physical presence would be enhanced by a bold and a stunning exterior enhanced by exquisite night time illumination. A high level of energy for the project should be sustained from the nearby SAP Center.

There will be minimal disturbance to local flora and fauna. Off-site construction using methods facilitated by minimal on-site assembly. The completed project should not interfere with surrounding animal, plant and tree life while preventing soil and river contamination (the resulting effect on insect life has yet to be determined).
