

OBSERVATION STRUCTURE

A vertical element, sculpture-like is coming out from the ground, a surface with sinuous curves. As it goes up bifurcates until the top. Each element is projected to take a different path but they both are connected by a horizontal plane: the observation platform.

As well as Guadalupe River and Los Gatos Creek are part of one stream, this structure is an analogy in the vertical axis. The kinetic lighting accentuates this image by going gradually upwards giving the sensation of the river stream flow in different colors.