

Intelligent drafting for banking and finance matters

Clarilis is an advanced precedent automation platform that adopts a unique approach to complex automation.

Banking and finance transactions always involve a large suite of documents. The Clarilis platform is unique in that it models an entire matter, rather than automating one document at a time. This highly structured approach has the power to radically reduce the time it takes to draft entire suites of complex documents - typically by 90% on the first draft and 100% on ancillaries - and enables the drafting of, for example all the documentation required for a leveraged acquisition finance agreement to be done with ease.

Our matter-based intelligent drafting platform helps law firms improve the speed, accuracy, consistency and cost-effectiveness of document drafting, helping you to improve margins and gain a competitive advantage.

Experience

Clarilis has many years' experience of automating sophisticated suites of LMA-based precedents, related security documents and legal opinions within banking and finance departments for leading firms.

Clarilis' implementation team is led by Professional Support Lawyers (PSLs) who have the knowledge and expertise from many years in practice - on average 15+ years PQE.

All communication is lawyer-to-lawyer and the whole team utilises its wealth of knowledge and experience from both private practice and previous Clarilis banking and finance projects to ensure the success of your automation project.

Automation of banking and finance documents including:

- Legal opinions (banking, funds, client versions)
- Leveraged facility agreements
- Real estate finance agreements
- Developing markets facilities agreements
- Intercreditor agreements
- Debentures
- Legal mortgages
- Guarantees
- Minutes and resolutions
- Ancillary notices, requests, certificates, etc.

“The key benefits of the Clarilis platform are the time saved in producing complex legal documents, particularly where a suite is produced from a single questionnaire; the risk management approach of producing documents via a system which starts with the right documents, asks the right questions and delivers an end product which matches the instructions; and the freeing up of our lawyers to apply their expertise to more complex issues.”
