Call for Nominations for leadership development for health professions students

DEADLINE NOVEMBER 13th, 2020 11:59 PM EST

Are you a medical student, pharmacy student, physician assistant student, nursing student or other health professional student who wants to be a leader?

Are you interested in changing healthcare policy at your institution or in the state of North Carolina?

We are seeking nominations from students in North Carolina health professions training programs who are interested in a year-long state-wide interprofessional leadership development program. Accepted scholars hone personal leadership development skills with interdisciplinary healthcare trainees and engage with leaders from around the state of North Carolina.

Eligible applicants will be current medical students, physician assistant students, pharmacy students, nursing students, nurse anesthesia students or other health professional students who are in good standing with at least one year remaining in their current training. Students will have shown a prior commitment to leadership in healthcare and a strong future potential as a leader. Students will be required to attend four half-day workshops and three one-two hour seminar discussions.

Nominees should include the following a statement of support (from institutional dean) that ensures the applicant will be able to attend the sessions.

This program is sponsored by the NC AHEC and is thus tuition-free for accepted applicants.

Nominees will be evaluated by the Future Clinician Leaders College Program Committee based on the following criteria:

- a) Prior commitment to leadership in healthcare
- b) Strong potential for this program to impact the student’s future career development
- c) Commitment to attend all sessions
- d) Local support from institutional mentor
