Thinking about how parties select their nominees for president, what do the terms “caucus” and “primary” mean?	3
In case you were unaware, a caucus is a system of local gatherings where voters decide which candidate to support, while a primary is a statewide voting process in which voters cast secret ballots for their preferred candidates. Currently, Nevada political parties use caucuses when selecting a nominee for President. Should Nevada continue to use caucuses or should it use primaries when selecting a nominee for President?	4
