New Agency Helps Biotechs Succeed

KANSAS CITY, MO (August 31, 2020) – Kansas City is a thriving epicenter for human life science companies as each year a growing number of established pharma companies, start-up biotech companies and medical device manufacturers move in to take advantage of KC’s talented workforce and business friendly environment.

Now a new specialized consulting agency, Connect Healthcare Consulting (CHC), has opened its doors to help biotechs succeed through content marketing, business development, sales force training, medical/technical communications, A&P and more.

“CHC has the resources to do it all,” said Meghan Burns, DVM, the firm’s founder and managing director. “We understand the science and with over 11 years’ experience working with strategic pharma companies and start-ups-- we understand business, too.”
