UNIQUE DESIGN TRAITS

Brilliant and well saturated padparadscha center stone accompanied by AGL report stating the stone is unheated and has Madagascar origin.

Design highlights center with superior craftsmanship; the prong set cascading pear-shaped diamond halo is supported by a hand-drawn wire floral-like basket.

Inner round halo of diamonds is set in 18K rose gold to add further femininity to the design.

GEMSTONE DETAILS

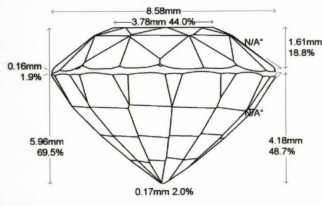

Padparadscha Sapphire

Named after the lotus blossom of Sri Lanka, the orangey-pink Padparadscha sapphire is a favorite of ours and is highly coveted amongst colored gemstone connoisseurs. These striking sapphires are a special member of the corundum family, rare in their optimal color because they are a delicate blend of pink and orange, which rarely occurs in nature. Historically padparadscha sapphires are found in Sri Lanka, many connoisseurs still insist that only a padparadscha from Sri Lanka is a TRUE padparadscha, however they are found in Madagascar and Mozambique as well. The large majority of all sapphires are heat treated to enhance color, but because preserving the color is so vital to a padparadscha, it is possible to find more readily available unheated stones.
