Indian IPOs thriving despite COVID pandemic

NIKKEI ASIA | 13 Jan 2021 | View original article

KEN KOYANAGI, Nikkei Asia Editor-at-large

MUMBAI -- There was a steady stream of initial public offerings by Indian companies throughout 2020, despite the devastating damage to Asia's third-largest economy caused by the COVID-19 pandemic. This resilience is likely to continue in 2021, with a handful of internet unicorns planning to go public.

A total of 14 Indian companies saw their stocks listed on the BSE and the National Stock Exchange during 2020, all of which took place since the coronavirus began to spread seriously in the country in March.

All of the 14 stocks began trading above their IPO issue price and ended 2020 in the same position, with four of them ending the year 100% higher than their issue price.

Investors' high expectations of post-IPO stocks are likely to continue throughout 2021 as several well-known internet startups, including four unicorns -- unlisted companies valued at $1 billion or higher -- are in the queue for IPOs to be completed by the end of this year.

Looking back at the companies that succeeded with IPOs in 2020, most were typical of Indian companies in one respect, in that prior to listing most of their outstanding shares were owned by what Indians call "promoters" -- ie their founders and their families.

But a major part of India's IPO class of 2021 will look more like typical Silicon Valley tech startups, which, before going public, raise millions of dollars from external angel investors, venture capital groups and corporate investors.

These startup investors then cash in their investment returns when their portfolio companies go public in the U.S. This is set to happen in India for the first time in the history of its capital markets.
